Mr. U urged the incoming committee to take the matter up afrosh with Government. When he was in London last year he saw Mr. Rees Williams of the Colonial Office, and he was abla to extract a promise that a fund would be allocated from the Colonial Dovelopment Fund for this scheme of building quarters for workmen, he said. An allocation from this Fund was mentioned in the Estimated during the recent Budget debate, for a housing scheme, and he, Mr. U. assumed that it is connected with the one he had spoken about to Mr. Rees Williams.

In a review of the activities of the Union during the year, that Chairman, Mr. Shum Chey-wah, said there was all round progress, and in most industries, such as weaving, knitting, metal, manufacture of enamelware vacuum flasks, though Kong could not be said abreast of other more technically advanced countries, she was trying to effect all the improvements she could. Imperial Preference in the

Hong Kong will continue its 17-month-old plan of adding six cents a day gratuity to a convict's remission for good conduct and industry, it was officially learned yesterday.

The Prison authorities do not intend to adopt the plan in force in Singapore since April 1 of paying prisoners 20 cents, 15 cents and 10 cents a day according to classified grades.

The new Singapore system provides for a certain amount of a convict's earnings to be credited to his savings account and to a sports fund. It is an outcome of recommendations made by the Prison Enquiry Commission.

A Public Relations Officer told the "Sunday Herald" yesterday that the Prison authorities consider that Hong Kong's current plan adequately meets, the requirements of the Colony today. There is no intention of adopting the new Singapore system. The present local system came into force in October 1948 when Governor-in-Council in n number of new regulations governing prisons gave the Superintendent of Prisons authority to pny a gratuity of six cents for each day of remission carned by a convict.

Special Cases

The Superintendent was plso authorised to award a bigger gratuity in any special case. This special graulty, however, should not exceed the amount a prisoner would have been eniltied to if he had carned full romission on his total sentence. of remission The amount which may be carned cannot however, exceed one-third of the prison sentence imposed provided the remission carned does no reduce the period of imprisonment to less than a month. The Official spokesman said yesterday that Hong Kong's present method adds a monetary value of six cents a day to remission which can be earned by a combination of good conduct and industry.

At the same time, he added, the local method provides a system of fines by forfeiture of remission (with its monetary

He said that this method has marit in that a strong prigoner or a tredesman, while in prison, has no advantage over a man of poor health or an unskilled labourer. All are cequired to conduct themselves decently and to be industrious according to their ability. The principal industries

Hong Kong's prisons are and shovel handles, uniforms and other clothing, weaving, tinware, matting, slippers and shoes, and repairing shoes and furniture for the prisons and other Government departments.--

Reclamation projects

In addition, labour is provided on certain reclamation and other projects, such as the clearing of bathing beaches, which are of public benefit. The spokesman said per cent of the work local prisoners is for Government. As a result no charge is made for labour. charge made is to recover actual cost of the materials

Therefore, income from of goods produced by prison labour or work done by prisoners is negligible, and is no indication of work performed.

.From January 1949 to February this year, the average daily prison population for each of the 14 months was: January: February: 3.345: March: April: 3,279; May: 5,099; September: 2,719; October, January (1959): 2,595; February (1950): 2,064.

EXILE'S WARNING SHAH TO.

Teheran, April 7. Iran's young Shah, Mohammad . Reza Pahlevi, is faced with a challenge from the former Premier, Ahmed Gavam, at present in self- imposed exile in Paris.

Gavam, who holds the distinction of being the only Premier of a country on the periphery of the USSR to maintain his country's sovereignty despite Red Army occupation, has written an open letter to the Shah damanding that the monarch forego his intention, expressed before joint assembly of both Houses nine week ago, to have the Iran Constitution modified so that the Shah would have veto power over all legislation.

Gavam's open letter, which reached Iran newspaper oMces today warned against treating the Constitution as a "toy." He recalled that neither, the present Shah's father, Reza Shah, nor the self-confessed enemy Iran's Constitution, Mohammad Ali Shah, dared request the nmendment proposed by the present monarch. The letter said in part: "Your Majesty's decision is dangerous and contrary to the higher interests of Iran. Its implementation will bring about difficulties and dangerous results not only for the nation but for Your Majesty. I consider it my duty to inform Your Majesty that if the suggested action is taken, it will not be very long before Your Majesty wIII such a temporary. fleeting action will arouse the anger of the nation and stimulate strong public resis-

Poll tax suggested by "St. John's Review"

There are contingencies of an unknown amount which will arise from the reinforcement of the garrison, but it would be surely more equitable if these were met by a special tax for the purpose, said "St. John's Review" in its latest issue. The writer suggests a poll an increased burden on those who tax of HK$10 a head for all already contribute most to the more than 18 years old. The Colony's revenue. article said:

"The strong criticisms of the Financial Secretary's budget proposals for 1950/51 which have appeared in the Press should serve as a reminder to Government that where there is taxation there should also be representation. So long as there is no direct representation, due note should be taken of such other forms of criticism-including letters to the newspapers-de are available to the subject. "The outstanding feature of this year's proposals is the increase in direct taxation, amounting to 50 per cent in the case of Corporation Profits Tax, to cover an estimated deficiency of $7,000,000 for the year. In view of the conservative estimates of the revenue figures, this seems: a severe increase at a time when living costs still appear to be rising.

"It must be admitted that there are contingencies of an unknown amount which will arise from the reinforcement of the Garrison, but it would surely be equitable if these were met by a special tax for the purpose, or at least, by a tax which is borne by as many as possible of those who enjoy the security of Hong Kong. "To provide for these contingenoles by an increase in the standard rate of tax is to place

Wider field "An increase in tobacco duty and entertainments tax would nover a far wider field: It is unlikely, Judging from the experience of the United Kingdom, that a moderate increase in the tobacco duty would materially affect the quantity consumed. "A special tax to meet the cost of defence, might take an even more radical form: a poll tax, of say $10 a head, for all persons over 18 years of age could be coupled with the issue of regis, tration cards now in progress. "If renewed annually until such time as conditions allow the Garrison to be reduced to its normal strength, it would go some way towards meeting these costs. "Could $10 a year be considered an unreasonable price for this security? It is less than the cost not long ago, of a six months' visa to China. "On the expenditure side there are many competing claims for projects and services to be started or saugmented: land, reclamation and now piers in the harbour, housing schemes, increased police services, more schools and health services, and but some.

"Lack of funds is said to prevent these being pressed ahead as speedily as could be wished. In a commercial undertaking a large part of this expenditure would be regarded as of a capital nature to be amortised over a period of years according to the expected life of the usset created: such a system, if adopted for major projects of a permanent nature would mean that the cost could. be spread over a number of years instead of being wholly included in the expenditure of the year in which it was incurred.

"By so doing, Government could embark more quickly and on a greater scale on many desirable soliemes which must otherwise remain curtailed or pigeon-holed. There is nothing unsound finan-cially in this suggestion; it is been only commonsouse."

Revolt in Indonesia:

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ULTIMATUM TO REBELS

Jakarta, April 7.

The Federal Government gave 48 hours' grace to Captain Andi Abdul Azis, rebel leader in control of Macassar, East Indonesian capital, to come to Jakarta and account for his revolt. An official communique announcing this also stated that at least 300 Dutch troops took part in Wednesday's coup, in which Azis and his followers overpowered the Macassar Feder-

American asks Czech sanctuary

Prague, April 7. Mr. George S. Wheeler, an American professor of leconomics living in Prague, today asked the Czechoslovak Govcrament for asylum for himself and his family and accused the United States of running an enormous espionage service.

At a press conference Mr. Wheeler, a former employee of the United States War Department, named General William Draper, one-time American Ecomics adviser in Germany, as among the Americans who came to secret agreements with German industrialists after the war on future policy in Germany.

Mr. Wheeler said he had asked the Czechoslovak Government to grant asylum for himself, his wife and their four children because of a whole chain of experiences which he had with the American Military Government in Germany.

He came to Czechoslovakia with his family about three years ago and is a professor at the Prague School of Economic Higher Science.

Mr. Wheeler said that during the war he was employed as an economist by the United States War Department and was sent to London in 1944 to be ready to head the Denuzification Branch in the American Zone of Germany when Berlin should be liberated.

He was also to become policy chief for the Labour Offices in

Berlin job

In Berlin, his official instructions were to climinate former Nazis from leading positions and replace them with anti-Fascists. Mr. Wheeler alleged that those officials were "the representatives of international cartels and trusts" and quoted an unnamed businessman as looking at the destruction in Berlin and remarking: "Too bad we did not go on to Moscow and finish the job.".

Mr. Wheeler said he soon realised that these words. expresed the real character of American policy-"a policy which was carried out by such men as. Robert Murphy's and General Draper, Vice President of the legal firm of Dillon Read and Company, representing the Interests of Wall Street."

Mr. Wheeler added that Gencral Draper's partner was Mr. John Foster Dulles, a brother of Office of Strategic Services "espionage organisation" in Switzerland who, Mr. Wheeler alleged, co-operated with leading Nazis during the war.

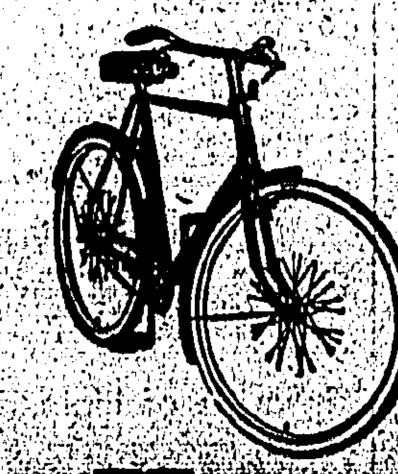

He said that "they all followed in the same concealed way the true aim of their policy during, as well as after, the war. They came to secret agreements with the big German industrialists regarding the future policy in Ger-

Everywhere I found an increasing realisation of the importance of civil aviation as a factor in daily life. There is good geographical reason for this interest. It has fortunately not yet become the accepted procedure in the courts that judgment should be found for the witness with the loudest voice. For it is evident that prejudice speaks louder than either facts or statistics.

It is a fact that we are in the midst of what can without exaggeration be called a crime wave. But no statistics so far exist to prove that the crime wave is consequent upon the abolition of flogging. It is certainly widely accepted as a fact that there exists in England a strong and deeply rooted prejudice in favour of corporal punishment either as a deterrent or as a punishment.

Possibly this national prejudice is generally free of the sinister implications foreign observers have chosen to see in it. With the independence of the United States of Indonesia, trade relations between the new republic and flong Kong are likely to ussume greater importance in the near future.

Actively making preparations for that day is a prominent Indoneslan businessman, Mr. G. C. Saw, who is at present in Hong Kping on a protracted visit.

Mr. Saw is the managing director of the largest Chinese news-paper in Indonesia — the "New China Times," a Liberal paper.

He is also director of a Dutchregistered realty firm, and chairman of the Su Tung' Middle School in Jakarta, which was established by Ohinese Therchants .to""provide deducation "in" the mother-tongue for Their children.

At one time he was an official on the Board of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in Indonesia. He resigned from this post when he came here three years ago.

Mr. Saw has had an adventurous career from youth, and is a self-made man. His present business luccess is not due to a good education, because he admits freely that he was expelled from school on two occasions."

Mr. Saw runs a business in Hong Kong in addition to his interests in indonesia. His local firm, G. C. Saw and Company, concentrates on British agencies.

By proclamation of the Crimes Act the Commonwealth Government has armed itself with powers immediately available and more than justified by the gravity of the new strike technitiue which is being felt in-all parts of Australia and all countries with which Australia trades,

What happens is this: Communists light on local grievances in widely separated ports and work them up until they become quite a Thing. Top marks are given by Red agents working this in ports where the local union leaders are known as non-Communists, for trouble shooters invariably regard such a dispute as a genuine industrial one. Very few moderate unionists recognise these local hold-ups as Communist-inspired, or connect strike in Freemantle with one Brisbane, but that's the way, it

Now, however, men who have so far escaped punishment while they have been inciting others to break the law can be reached, and moreover, the evil emissaries of other countries can be deported. Now the gloyes are off, every loyal Australian will see the fight as a free for all, for what is to come is something more than a round between the Menzies Government and the Moscow men-it is the salvation of the country.

Extraordinary thing about the disruptive element in the watersiders" unions is that, if a showdown occurred, Communists and their supporters would not add up to more than 25 per cent of these unions, but they wield an influence out of all proportion to their numerical strength. Secreturies and many puld officials in the ports are acknowledged Communists: the watersiders elect them because of their ability, but in most of the ports Communist nominees for the executives are invariably defeated. This sets up a pull devil pull-dog contest between the Communists and non-Communists which is behind all the waterfront trouble, as each accuses the other of giving away conditions and vicing for prestige with the rank and file.

Opportunities for good workers in the country have never been better, but materials are even shorter than labour and some graziers are so desperate that they are restricting breeding to keep their flocks down to workable numbers,

In the good seasons landowners plough back as much as they can in the way of profits, not solely for the sake of the land but because it is the one way they can reduce the burden of taxation, but the problem at the present time is to secure materials for improvements. Where graziers have been able to secure fencing materials they are paying £80 to £100 a mile for the erection of fences as compared to £20 and £30 before the war but even at that it is a paying proposition against the depredations of the rabbit, because, come the bad times, there will be no need for a census to prove that the pest outnumbers the flocks.

Unable to get a suitable site in the town, Mr. Anderson set up business on a refrigerator barge of 100 tons which he bought from war disposals. The meat he sells comes from his abattoirs at Wallangarra, N.S.W. and is freighted to the Territory from Sydney; merchandising methods too are a decided novelty for Papun as the shop stays open all day (and quite understandably the one does too) and at Christmas time gift poultry, was sent to customers and free beer was served to them in the shop.

Britain accused of paralysing Europe economy

Washington, April 7. Mr. Styles Bridges, Republican Senator, today accused Britain of paralysing Western Europe's economy by her fear of competition and thereby playing directly into the hands of the Communists.

He also charged Britain with sending dismantled German machinery to Iron Curtain Albania. Mr. Bridges made these charges in a letter to Mr. Pat McCarran, Democratic Senator and Chairman of the Congress Committee which supervises foreign aid spending.

His letter went on, "This economic paralysis is further aggravated by the efforts of the Britich to socialise the Ruhr coal and steel industries, by the limitation on synthetic oil and rubber industries which force the Germans to buy raw materials from British interests with the American taxpayers' dollars, by the new drive for 'decartelisation' which has so confused responsibilities both in ownership and control of German industry as to destroy ince tive and confidence."

Rain-makers

A dejected group of tired scientists wrapped themselves more tightly in their suppling rain-coats, climbed back into their cars, set the wind-shield wipers back and forth, and started off to look for another place where they might be able to make rain.

The drenched men had already rejected four possible sites in a week-long tour of the Catskill was a torrential downpour. By being paid for out of City, New Mountains, some hundred miles to nightfall people were talking in York State and U.S. Government the North West of the drenched inches, city of New York. And they had to have a field headquarters, a control point, so they said, or else they wouldn't be able to tell the difference between the rain they were going to make and the rain that was drenching them anyway.

The mayor's plan

water shortage, and to avoid future water shortages, by making rain of his own. In the city where nothing is alleged to be impossible, and where nothing succeeds like high costs, the burly ex policeman from Bohola. Co
Mayo, had talked his budget directors into providing the sum directors into providing the sum of £17,000 for "scientific rainmaking research."

Nobel Prizewinner Dr. Irving Langmula had been consulted, A Dr. Wallace Howell had been appointed Rainmaker-in-Chief, and the whole idea was optimistically christened "Operation Cloudburst."

The idea itself was an old one. Pellets of dry ice would be dropped into billowing, deep, final ownship of the clouds, cumulus-type clouds, whereupon obliging rain showers would promptly fill the anxious reservoirs below.

New attraction

As such. The idea had been tried in all five continents of the world.

But the £17,000 Blg Budget was an altogether new attraction. Scientists and meteorologists of dozen races, nationalities, religions, universities and political affiliations made a concerted rush to get into the act. Squads of keen young men applied for the £35-a-week job of Assistant Rainmaker-in-Chief alone.

For months, dour communiques entitled "The Water Situation" had squeezed their way on to one corner or the other of the front pages. These listed the amount, in millions of gallons, of water remaining in the city's reservoirs. Happily, city editors ran story after story detailing the progress of Dr. Howell's pilgrims, and any old scientist who had ever flown a crankety old plane to upend pellets into clouds was automatically the main human interest news of the day.

Quick to see a chance publicity, the United States Air Force issued a communique of its

When it heard the Air Force had beaten it away from the post the U.S. Navy said it would attach "an expert" to watch the. experiment. And finally the Air Force decided to send radar equipment, through which scientist ground crews could relate the position of the dropping aircraft to the natural and the man-made showers.

bravely Dr. Howell and his associates (less the Chief Assistant, who had still-to be selected) set off for the Catskill Mountains. where the reservoirs were.

Next day it began to rain.

Next day the Mayor's office announced that the reservoirs had gained 646,000,000 gallons.

Throughout the second day it kept on raining. Weather forecasts indicated more rain. The mayor's plan

Mayor William O'Dwyer, fresh from his St. Patrick's Day celebration, was going ahead with his plans to end New York's present and the planes would take off any day now, and that the only hold-up was that he couldn't find a field headquartes where he couldn't find a field headquartes where he couldn't find a

Things became even more compliented over the weekend when upstate farmers charged that O'Dwyer was trying to take their rain away from them.

"If the city's planes unload all the rain from our clouds on their reservoirs we won't have any for our fields," they said in effect. Spurred by farmers' traditional hatred of New York City and undeterred by the fact that they were raising the subject of the lawyers served O'Dwyer with papers demanding that he should show cause why the city's experiments should not be forbidden. O'Dwyer's lawyer said that the city was short of water and would not be restrained. Meanwhile, the downpour con-Weather observers hadn't seen anything like it in

Faced with a classic music-hall situation, the undaunted Mayor went to the microphone to speak to the people. Meanwhile Mr. Carney, his water conservation chief, declared another dry day in which all good citizens were supposed not to shave or take a bath or drink a glass of water unless it was absolutely necessary. (The idea; to combat complacency.)

Plans changed

But the Mayor remarked! huffly that the reservoirs were only 53 per cent full, that something long-term had to be laid on however hard it was raining, and that in any case Dr. Howell was in charge of everything.

So the Mayor quickly turned back to his plans for welcoming the Lord Mayor of York, for unwelcoming the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, and for allotting bigger and better Budgets for things like schools and housing development.

Actually, Mayor O'Dwyer and his assistants at City Hall have been spending far more time on long-range municipal expansion In his address to the Council, O'Dwyer detailed plans to improve and expand the City's school system, its health and hospital facilities, its public housing and its bus and underground lines. A new system of sewage was to be worked out, to free Coney Island and the other beaches from pollution. Obsolete schools were to come down. Fifty-six old as "flying saucers" were reported to have been seen winging their way over the small American 'town of Orangeburg, in South Carolina, on March 9 and 10.

The "Sunday Dispatch" decided to find out who exactly saw them, what they saw, and in what circumstances they saw them.

Many reports about flying saucers have appeared in newspapers in all parts of the world: Belleving that many readers may think such reports have been exaggerated as they were passed from mouth to mouth, or by newspapermen with an eye to selling their stories to the world's Press. the "Sunday Dispatch" decided to go right to the source: Orangeburg, S.C.

Here, then, is the account of the sky," the Orangeburg flying saucers, as This news item was printed told by a local paper, the "Times beneath the headlines; "Flying and Democrat," of Orangeburg. 'No explanation'

On March 10, the "Times and Democrat" printed the following: "A 'flying saucer' made its way slowly across the Orangeburg sky yesterday and sank with the setiting sun.

"The strange object was viewed by at least five persons who stood on Memorial Plaza and saw the bright-shining disc leaving vapour trail high in the sky. "Observers who saw

Rainbow

Two dozen rainbow-coloured chicks made a very gala entrance into the world recently at Vincland, New Jersey. Instead of a modest, downy cont of light yellow or black. these little newcomers sported harlequin coats of red, green, and bright yellow.

But the rainbow chicks were not in any way freaks. The explanation of the gay colours was simply that a certain Mrs. Kiss of Cleveland, Ohio, was on the last lap of an experiment in multicoloured hatching begun by her father 18 years ago.

Says Mrs. Kiss as she watches over her coloured brood: "The use of coloured chickens will do away with banding and stamping for segregation purposes."
And how is it done? The answer, writes Kay Murray, is almost too simple to believe. The dyes are injected into the eggs by needles - and the normal incubation of the eggs does the rest. The result — rainbow-coloured chickens every bit as lively as their more soberly clad brothers and sisters.

For the benefit of those who may be worrying about coping with a green chicken on the dinner table, Mrs. Kiss explains that the colours gradually lade as the chickens grow up. By the time they are at the dinner table stage they will be "back to normal" although their legs may still have something of the "rainbow" about

Whenever you travel, packing is one of the factors which help to make or mar the comfort and enjoyment of your journey. To be able to lay your hands quickly and easily on whatever item is required is an advantage which is well worth the forethought of a little planning in advance.

To make up your travelling beauty kit, you'll not only need to ransack the make-up box, but the bathroom cupboard and the first-aid cabinet as well—and by far the best way to pack your collection is in a special fravelling case of their own.

Football

What is the most pupular game In any Spanish school? The miswer, one might imagine, would be some form of "bull-fighting." The truth of the malter, however, is that although fighting" games were indeed popular once-upon-a-time, game of the moment is nothing more ambitious than straightforward football.

Whether it be the Senior School at games practice or the junior forms playing in the streets after school, there is always a leather ball at handa gonl-mouth somewhere

Footballs of all sizes from the regulation leather ones, to gafly coloured rubber ones, have corbpletely taken the place of the once-popular wooden horns and make-believe matador

At all hours, even by lamplight, the streets of Spain are now blocked by would-be football stars. Accidents, as might be expected in a country just learhing the art, are frequent and often extra police have to be called in to control a "street" game that has got out of hand, Apart from the rough and ready street games, however, more "official" goal-posts can be seen on the outskirts of Madrid, Barcelona, Bilbao, Seville, and Valencia. All of which testifies to the change which has come to the playgrounds of Don Quixote's country. Spain is in fact, going football crazy.

English cricket:

Encouragement to young talent is order of the day

London, April 7. introduction of young blood is a necessity if English cricket is to produce a team capable of halding its own or beating the Australians in the near future.

It is an encouraging sign, therefore, to see that Middlesex and Yorkshire, joint winners of the County Championships last season, are setting an example by giving youth a chance.

CLONFECKLE WINS DERBY HONG KONG

Despite the cold and threatening weather yesterday, the Hong Kong Jockey Club stands were packed with punters for the first day of the Easter Race Meeting.
